Deer Leap

Bristol High School

Bristol, Vermont

THE BRISTOL ROTARY CLUB

We Dedicate —

this Deer Leap to the Bristol Rotary to show our appreciation for everything that organization has done for the betterment of Bristol High School.

We wish to thank them for the automatic bell system, a tape recorder, the annual expenses for a delegation of students to the Model UN Assembly and to Boys' State. We appreciate the assistance at Square Dance Festival time and the privileges gained through their efforts on the new community skating rink.

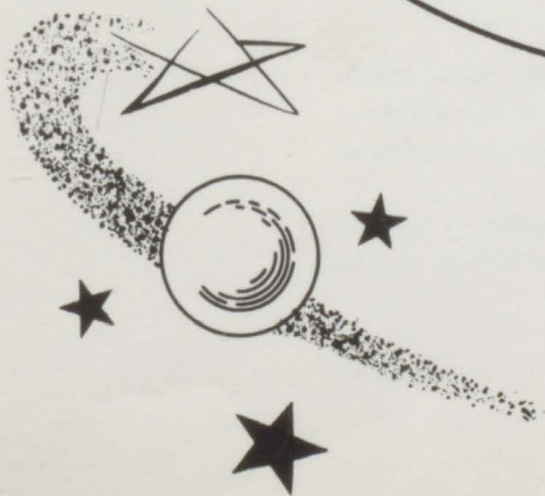

For these and many kindnesses extended us through the development of the Mt. Street School playground and landscaping, the Class of 1956 takes this opportunity to show its appreciation.

Principal's Message

Richard H. Breen

A good school is a fair guarantee that a community will produce citizens that are capable of accepting and performing their rightful responsibilities.

Each part in our school life becomes an integral phase of one continuous preparation for democracy. We must accept responsibilities as well as privileges, evaluate the worthy and unworthy, and sacrifice for mankind as well as receive the benefits of her society.

Learning and loyalty, both products of education, are the real strength of our nation.

The young men and women of the Bristol Junior-Senior High School have proved themselves worthy to be considered among those capable of supporting our democratic principles.

"Loyal citizenship depends on the learning of specific values. It must be supported by an understanding of what democracy means and how to achieve it."

Class Song

The day is drawing near
For us to be leaving
The halls of Bristol High
And all our many friends.

We want to stay here now
And reminisce a while
For though we'll go away
Our hearts are still with you.

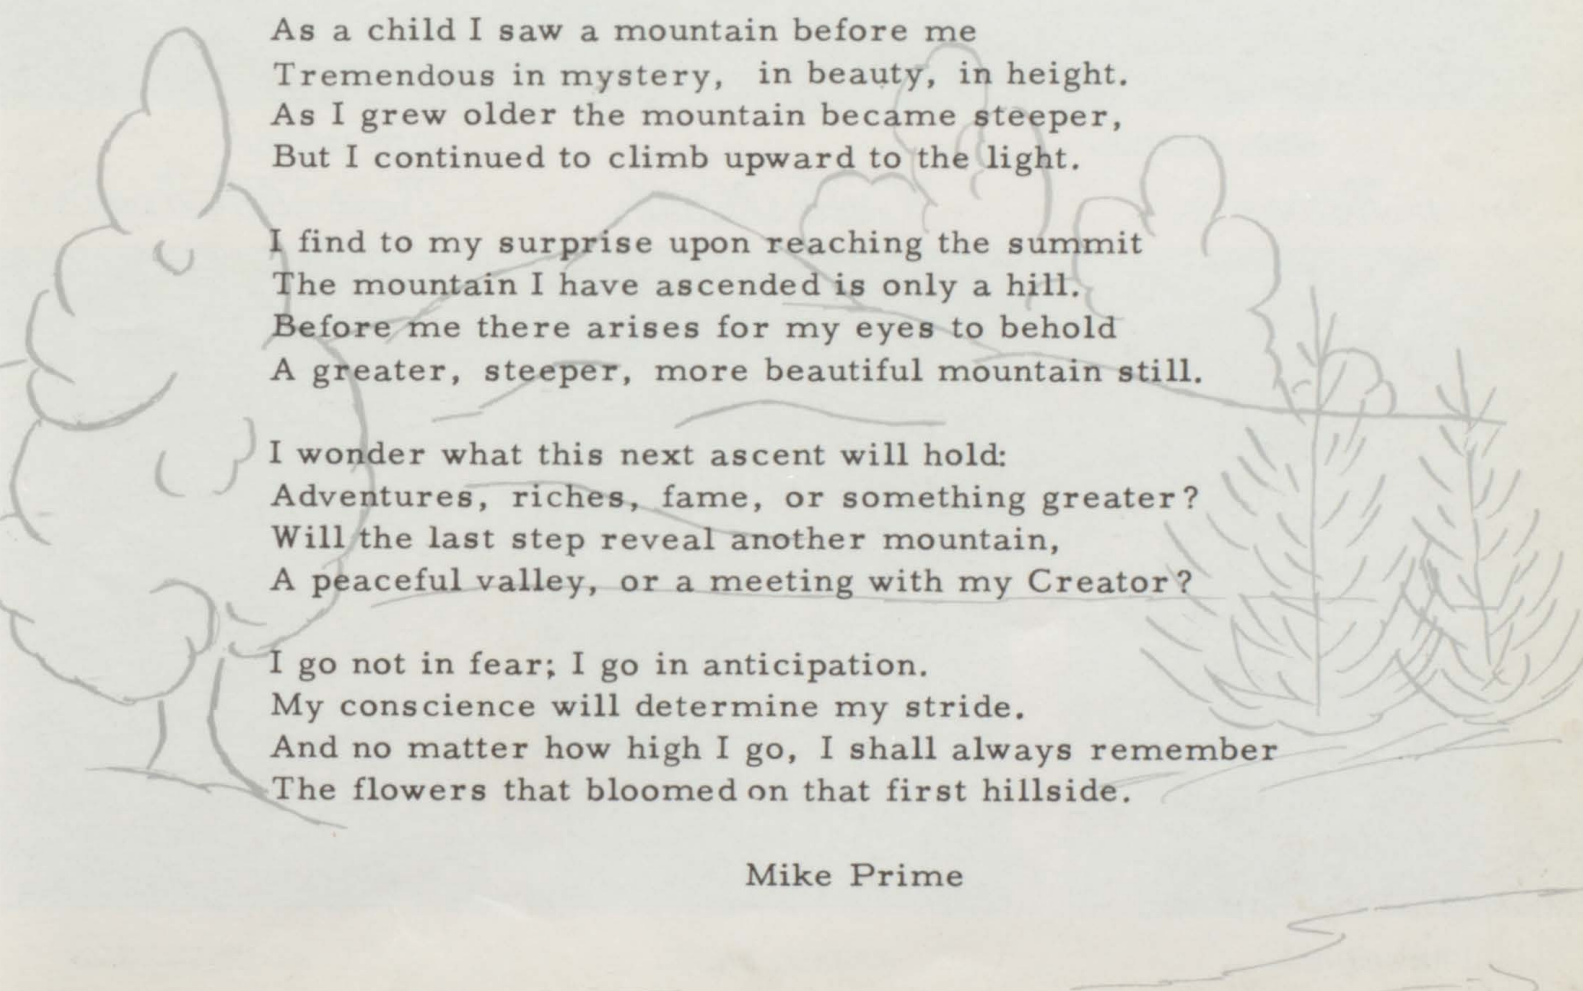

These walls all heard
A memory now and then
To each teacher
We give our deepest wish.

Now we feel sorry
For leaving each one of you
Please don't forget us soon
The Class of '56.

Tune: "Harbor Lights"

Class Poem

As a child I saw a mountain before me
Tremendous in mystery, in beauty, in height.
As I grew older the mountain became steeper,
But I continued to climb upward to the light.

I find to my surprise upon reaching the summit
The mountain I have ascended is only a hill.
Before me there arises for my eyes to behold
A greater, steeper, more beautiful mountain still.

I wonder what this next ascent will hold:
Adventures, riches, fame, or something greater?
Will the last step reveal another mountain,
A peaceful valley, or a meeting with my Creator?

I go not in fear; I go in anticipation.
My conscience will determine my stride.
And no matter how high I go, I shall always remember
The flowers that bloomed on that first hillside.

If we could turn back the hands of time, we could relive many wonderful times and memories. Let us go back twelve years and visit our first grade teachers, Mrs. Hannon and Mrs. Retell. Mrs. Hannon left us when the year was half over. Could it be that even in that ancient year we were driving our teachers crazy? Among the many smiling faces on that epoch making morning were several which are still enduring the pains and pleasures of acquiring an education. They are: Dan Jeffers, Fred Smith, Toni Thomas, Carolyn Tudhope, Dick Delong, Bertha Williams, Mike Prime, Tim Hefferman, Susan Freeman, and Sandra Morrison. These hardy people, along with many more who fell by the wayside, who passed through the rigors of learning their ABC's and the ritual of being young things, ventured forth on the first of our annual class picnics, a happy hike to the Recreation Field.

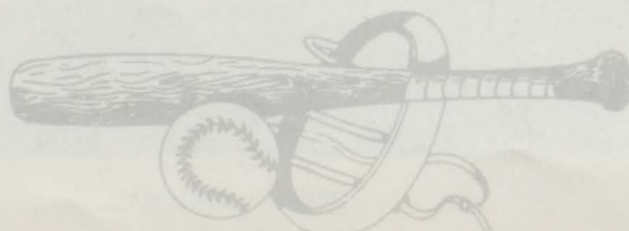

With Mrs. Wright at the helm, the class of '56 passed through the second year of school without much happening in the way of important events, and in the spring the hills of Bristol Flats were graced by our presence during the hours of our second class picnic.

The third grade was highlighted by the little Christmas play we presented. The main characters were Santa Claus Prime and his wife, Mrs. Susan Claus. Tim Hefferman left us to carry his educational career further in the wilds of Starksboro. The following members of the present class joined us in this year during the reign of Miss O'Connor: Jerry LaFoy, Butch Scribner, Norm Partch, and Loretta Cook. When springtime rolled around, we decided to renew old memories and revisit the Recreational Field for our annual picnic.

In the fourth grade, Mrs. Trombley had the pleasure of introducing us to two new subjects, history and geography. Ronnie Gordon had the good fortune of joining us that year. In the spring we journeyed to the Fleming Museum to pick up some culture. After touring the museum, we went to Ethan Allen Park for lunch. A good time was had by all in spite of Mrs. Trombley's efforts to get us out of the tower.

Mrs. Gregory was our teacher in the fifth grade. Under her leadership we had a year in which we began to run into harder subjects and more work. It was discovered this fall that Susan Freeman had migrated to the hills of Hinesburg and was no longer with us. Later, however, she realized her error and came back. It was decided to visit the Proctor Marble Works for our class picnic and to stop at Lake Dunmore for lunch and swimming.

The next year was a rough one for the teachers; we had three of them. Mrs. Stanton, Mrs. Wright, and finally Mrs. Corrigan tried their luck with our class. In that year one of the greatest theatrical productions ever was presented to the P. T. A. by our class. It was The Emperor's New Clothes. Emperor Jeffers' Long Johns were very becoming to him. We invaded New York State on our class trip, as we visited Fort Ticonderoga.

History

We, as many classes in the past have been, were introduced to the world of home-work, study halls, exams, etc. by Mrs. Whitcomb. We're sure she must have received quite a thrill from teaching us. We did from her teachings, and at the end of our seventh year were ready to brave the rigors of becoming an eighth grader the next fall. Maurice Rathbun left the Metropolis of South Bristol to join us that year. In the past when we wanted something for the class we collected Maltex boxtops. Now we were initiated into the realm of big money by participating in the school fair and by selling taffy.

Our eighth grade year was highlighted by the victory of our team in the Addison County Junior High Basketball Tourney. Also, many of our class participated in the Square Dance Festival at Northfield. We sponsored a record dance in the middle of the year and it was a mild success. Mr. Bourgeois was our class advisor in that year. In June we bundled into a bus and traveled to Lake Dunmore for our class trip.

With Mrs. Jimmo as the boss, we entered high school with a bang -- the dreaded initiation. However, it wasn't bad at all, and picked up some tricks to use when we became seniors. In the middle of the year Mr. Marshall left us to become the principal of Middlebury High School and Mr. Breen took his place. We did not have many money-raising activities during this year but still managed to go to Bayside for our spring outing. New members this year were: Royden Layn, Martha Pierce, Ronald Orvis, Allen Steadman, Arthur Pixley, Joyce Jennings, Avonia Jewell, Clara Purinton, Gwen Cloe, Giles Place, Tim Heffernan, and Susan Freeman.

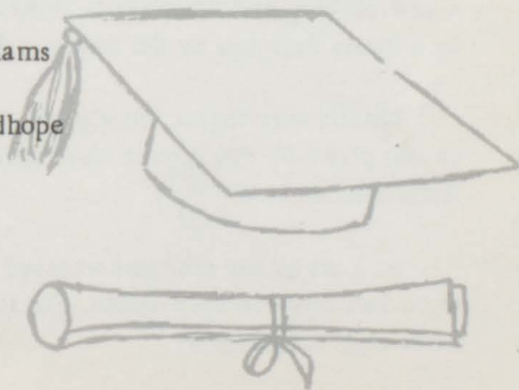

Our sophomore year was one of changes, we had a girl class president for the first time. Although we didn't do much in the way of earning money that year, we all had a good time and in the spring we went on a trip to Lake Dunmore. Mrs. Granger was our class advisor that year.

In an exact reverse of the previous year, we had a very successful junior year. A sleigh ride, a card party, a food sale, and the prom all came out successfully, both financially and the sense that we had loads of fun. Mr. Brasure was the advisor that year and we decided, the first time in ten years, not to go on a class trip. Laurel Reed and Buzzy Lattrell joined us in that year. Laurel left us at midyears to go to Middlebury. In the spring all were looking forward to the next fall and even further ahead to the magic month of June when we would graduate.

The senior year was a carry-over from the junior year -- we were successful in our money making events. Our chicken pie supper was extremely successful as was our Senior Play, Mystery in the Library, with Mrs. Lamont and Mr. Roberts as class advisors. Everybody pitched in and helped with the play and we had a party afterwards. Three other parties were held during our senior year. They were birthday parties for Clara, Sandra, and Dan. Laurel Reed came back from Middlebury that year and joined our class. All in all the last year was the best of the twelve, for everybody was looking forward to June 8. But how many were thinking happy thoughts about leaving school or having sad memories about the days gone by and never to return?

Class Prophecy

The year is 1966; the event is the visiting of the beautiful city of Success in the state of Prosperity. This veritable Utopia was the city the majority of the wonderful class of 1956 chose for their future home.

My name is Bernard, and this is the story of my recent visit to this wonderful town.

The countryside around the metropolis is one of extreme beauty. The farms struck me as being especially well-planned -- the outdoor resting spots being the proper distance from the houses and all that. Two of the farms had extra special privies; one was pink and the other was disguised as a rose trellis. The names on the mailboxes were Steadman and Orvis. However, these spectacles were far overshadowed by the enormous statue which was being erected next to the road in honor of the planner of all these wonderful farms -- that great agricultural engineer, Daniel Jeffers. The base and surroundings of the statue were being planned by Mr. Jeffers' friend and associate, the state's foremost mechanical engineer, Gary Scribner.

Next my bus, which was being driven by the Success City Bus Lines' best and safest (?) driver, Royden Layn, passed through the suburbs of the city. Here, also, the surroundings were very nice, and the houses showed that their occupants had done well financially. The particular street my bus went through was called Millionaires Row, and the wives of the financial wizards were sunning themselves on their respective lawns. They strangely resembled Bertha Williams, Joyce Jennings, Loretta Cook, Laurel Reed, Clara Purinton, and Bonnie Jewell. Of course, they had changed some -- the usual effects of prosperity, you know. Farther down the street was the playground at which the children of the people on the street played, under the leadership of Coach Lattrell of the Success City School System.

As my bus approached the intersection of two large streets, we began to slow down. It seems there was some sort of traffic mix-up. However, it was soon cleared up by Sergeant Heffernan of the State Constabulary. It seems the traffic jam occurred when a huge trailer truck, driven by Art Pixley of the Prosperity State Trucklines, pulled away from the parking lot in front of the municipal hospital. The driver had been visiting with his old friends, Dr. Ronald Gordon and his secretary, Toni Thomas. The real trouble started when the truck driver's mind was taken away from the road by one of his old friends who waved from one of the windows of the hospital. It was Susan Freeman, who was a nurse in the hospital.

Now we came into the bus terminal, and I took a taxi on a sightseeing tour of the city. The first place of interest I saw was the city park. I stopped and visited with the forest ranger in charge. His name was Maurice Rathbun. Also, in the park playing with his orchestra in an afternoon concert was maestro Partch. Continuing on my way, I came to a large building which my cabbie told me was the chemical research laboratory, Professor Smith in charge.

Chow time was approaching, and I asked my driver where I could find the best place to eat at a reasonable price. He told me of two places on 16 Street which were noted for their food and courteous waitresses. Arriving at 16th Street, I found myself confronted with two impressive restaurants. I had to choose between Delong's Beanery and Prime's Greasy Spoon. Finally I chose the Greasy Spoon and entered; I was greeted by the chief waitress, Gwen Cloe, and was taken to a booth. I enjoyed a good meal; and when I left, I complimented the cook on his excellent cooking.

On the way to the airport, for my return trip was to be by plane, I ran into a street gang working on a new curbing and sidewalk in front of the Martha Pierce Religious Education Center. The gang was bossed by a hardy foreman by the name of Place.

Finally arriving at the airport, I boarded my plane and headed for home. I was well taken care of on the plane by two expert stewardesses, Carolyn Tudhope and Sandra Morrison. They told tales of their little ones at home.

As I sat in my seat and watched the countryside, I thought that my old friends had done well, although some had doubted they would. For isn't the most intricate piece of machinery dependent upon countless little cogs and wheels?

Bristol High Centennial

The year 1956 is the centennial anniversary of Bristol High School. For one hundred years this building has been preparing the young people of Bristol and surrounding areas for life in this world of ours.

In 1855, during town meeting, the selectmen were authorized to raise $600.00 to start construction of a secondary school in Bristol. The school was to be called the "Bristol Literary and Scientific Institute." The building was completed in 1856 and was opened September 3, 1856, with Horace Thomas as the first teacher.

The first school was built on the corner of Pleasant and Maple Streets where the E. N. Dike house is now located. Sometime prior to 1871 the building was moved to its present site.

In 1898, the building that houses the home economics and laboratory rooms was added. At this time the graded school was moved from Garfield Street to this building. The town report for this year shows that $937.74 was spent for repairs on the building. The biggest item was the furnace. Running water was also installed this year.

The name of the school was changed from the "Bristol Literary and Scientific Institute" to Bristol High School in 1884.

The curriculum at this time (1900) consisted of many courses that are not taught now. Among these are the following: Greek and Roman history, declamation (required of all students all four years), mechanical drawing, spelling, zoology, botany, commercial geography, agriculture, psychology, astronomy, and drawing.

In 1908, a steel fire escape was added and frequent fire drills were held. Also, the building was wired in this year. It was rewired in 1950.

In 1910, the school was provided with a flag and pole, which was put on top of the building. Also, this year about seven hundred square feet of slate blackboard was put in the school.

In 1910-1911, the horse sheds that stood at the rear of the building were torn down.

The year 1912 was the big year for changes in the building. A new heating system was installed in this year. Hereafter the school was to be heated by steam. Also, the large addition on the north of the building was constructed. This addition, the heating system, and various other minor repairs amounted to $8,879.41.

It was about this time that athletics and music were introduced to the school. Football and baseball were the two sports played. An orchestra was organized at this time.

The building housing the gym and auditorium was built in 1930, at an expense of about $34,000. The first basketball game was played on February 27, 1931.

The bell that is up in the belfry on top of the building has been there for one hundred years, the same length of time that the building has been here. During this year, the one-hundredth anniversary of the building, the bell slipped off the standard and came to rest on a beam. If this beam had not caught the bell, it would have come crashing down through the building. It is ironical that the bell fell exactly one hundred years after its installation.

REPORT

Student Council has had quite a successful year. We have sponsored a Suggestion Box which is in the Freshman Home Room. Another project was the maintenance of the ice-skating rink at the recreation field. The biggest project was the centennial celebration which was held in June. We thank the Alumni Association for their co-operation in making this a success.
